1. What was alleged to be a parasite turbo-jet fighter suspended from a four-engine aircraft was observed only once. A special vehicle transported the parasite to the left wing of the aircraft; it was fitted and remained there over night. Details of the suspension devices were not remembered. The parasite slanted slightly. The four-engine aircraft took off the next day about noon and returned two days later without the parasite.

50X1-HUM

2. Information was also obtained on the twin-engine aircraft with an auxiliary power unit on the fuselage.

50X1-HUM

3. The aircraft observed was a two-seater ground attack plane with booster rocket. The pilot of this aircraft was a Hero of the Soviet Union.
